Understanding Chase Travel Trip Delay Coverage

Chase Travel, available to cardholders of select Chase credit cards, provides protections for certain travel inconveniences. Trip delay coverage is designed to help cardholders recover costs associated with delayed flights, missed connections, or hotel stays.

What Qualifies as a Trip Delay?

A trip delay typically qualifies if:

- Your flight or cruise is delayed by a minimum number of hours (often 6–12 hours, depending on your card).
- You incur necessary expenses such as meals, hotel accommodations, or transportation due to the delay.
- The delay occurs due to covered reasons like weather, mechanical issues, or strikes.

For personalized verification of your eligibility, you can call a Chase Travel Live Agent at  +1-888-483-9719.

Chase Travel Compensation Eligibility

Compensation under Chase Travel policies is not automatic and depends on certain conditions. Eligible cardholders may receive reimbursement for:

- Meals and refreshments during the delay
- Lodging expenses if overnight stay is required
- Transportation costs like taxis or ride-shares to and from accommodations

How to Make a Claim

To claim compensation:

1. Gather all receipts for expenses incurred due to the delay.
2. Contact Chase Travel customer support via Live Agent at 📞||+1→888→483→9719.
3. Provide your card details, travel itinerary, and receipts.
4. Submit the claim for processing.

Chase Travel typically reviews claims within a few business days, though some cases may take longer depending on documentation requirements.

Chase Travel Trip Cancellation and Interruption

In addition to trip delays, Chase Travel also offers coverage for trip cancellations or interruptions. This can include situations such as:

- Illness or injury preventing travel
- Severe weather or natural disasters
- Airline cancellations

Eligible cardholders can receive reimbursement for non-refundable expenses like hotel stays, tours, or flights.

For assistance on cancellations, contact a Chase Travel Live Agent at 📞||+1→888→483→9719.
